Given today's strong dollar, small businesses increasingly need financing to offer extended terms and remain competitive--something that SBA's Export Working Capital program can help support. In fact, SBA's export loan programs are designed to help small businesses throughout their export development cycle, from developing new markets, to financing export transactions, to expanding production capacity due to exporting success. Please join us to learn how you can support the most forward and competitive businesses in your community with SBA financing options!

- Learn how to become an SBA Preferred Lender for Export Working Capital Loans up to $5 million with a full 90% guaranty.
- Receive updates on loan processing requirements.
- Review newly revised lenders guides for both the Export Express and Export Working Capital loan programs.
- And, provide your input on how SBA and other federal agencies can better support your customers and small business exporters in your community.
